President Urges Congress to Put Curbs On Labor

Recommendations Outlined in 12-Point Plan For Legislation

WASHINGTON (A) - President Eisenhower today urged Congress to curb "corruption, racketeering and abuse of trust and power in the labor-management field." He made the recommendation in a 12point proposal for legislation.

In a special message, Eisenhower recommended specifically that unions be subject to loss of legal bargaining status if they fail to file true and proper data on their finances and other subjects.

Against a background of congressional inquiries disclosing abuses in the labor-management field, Eisenhower called for legislation "to benefit and protect the welfare of American workers and the general public."

He added it should curb abuses. stability in labor-management relations.

UAW Meeting On Reuther Plan

DETROIT (A)-The United Auto Workers' special convention on bargaining strategy was ready to vote today on Walter P. Reuther's profit-sharing plan for the auto

The UAW president appeared confident that he had ample strength among the 3,000 delegates to win approval of the plan. It would give auto workers a onequarter slice of a company's profits over 10 per cent on net capital before taxes.

In an hourlong opening debate on the plan, the redhaired labor chief bristled at a delegate's suggestion that it "appears we're serving as a rubber stamp."

The criticism came from Lewis H. Michener of Long Beach, Calif. He said in the 1958 bargaining program should have been worked out in the convention instead of being publicized before the delegates convened.

Reuther retorted, "We only told you our thinking. The companies rejected our thinking. We could have been criticized justly if we had not given you time to think

On the Other Side of the Fence

A proposed visit of five dozen Russian educators to study school systems in this country next fall suggests some lively possibilities. Frankly, if we were helping to run the Kremlin, we'd cancel it now, becaue some of the possibilities are too lively for comfort. This is what we mean:

In education, as in many other matters, an expert is someone who lives in another town. His counterpart in your own town-with the same smattering of ignorance - is only a poor confused soul who makes a nuisance of himself by pretending to know more than he really does know.

It is something like that with education. The education on the other side of the fence, the mountains, the ocean or whatever it is that marks a difference always looks greener and juicier.

For example, since Sputnik, Russian education has been looking like an enchanted valley to the kind of people who believe the world, itself, could be heaven if every school child had a bachelor of science degree.

They have been drooling about Russia's giant strides in education, its revelations and triumphs - how the little ones are turned over to the state when they show aptitude for book-learning and are obliged to hit the books or lose their eating licenses.

This strikes the long-distance admirers of Russian education as just the ticket for the United States. They evoke an image of rose-colored chalk dust in which the U.S. education system would become every day in every way more like the absolutist system of the Soviet Union, with all options, nonsense, fol-de-rol, liberal arts and humanities outlawed by political fiat.

Egged on by their own psychol-neurotic tendency to practice what they find intolerable in the practice of others and to renounce what they love in their own practice, these long-distance admirers of Russian education have reached such a frenzy that they actually are talking as if it was the ultimate answer

Well. it isn't.

You can bet 10 to 1 that the Russian educators who are planning to come over will be third day's quota of mixed peas and carrots

They will be full of ideas about improving Russian education after witnessing the marvels of U.S. schools, where something is provided for everybody, including kids who couldn't learn anything out of a book if their

They will go back to Russia bursting with suggestions for making the bleak, rab, gritty and hazardous educational experience of Russian students more attractive, the way it is in (you must pardon the expression) free

Things Are Looking Down, Too

Just when we were about to believe the world was made of nothing but Russian Reds and Rockets, the way they say it is in Washington, our impression was blurred by a surprising story from East Cowes, England.

East Cowes is on the Isle of Wight, Marine researchers are experimenting with models of a new kind of ship in a test tank at a seaplane manufacturing plant on the island. While everybody else is craning his neck to look upward, these people are looking downward.

They are looking into a theory that a ship hull of the right shape could be constructed to carry tremendous cargoes with nuclear power. But the ships would not travel on the surface of the ocean. They would move under the surface at speeds up to 50 miles an hour, free from wind resistance and storms.

Their principal use would be for transporting vast quantites of petroleum. Thus, their principal claim on interest is the never - ending search of the great oil companies for more efficient methods of bulk transportation.

So far, it's only a research project. But while the rest of the world is looking upward to rockets and satellites, the researchers are looking downward to the depths of the ocean, which offers possibilities of exploitation more fruitful than anything likely to be found in outer space.

That is where the source of hydrogen to > Love Those Quakers! The flashy Salem High Quaker basketball team has crossed the midway point of its season with an enviable 10-0 record. Voted in 10th place in state Class AA competition in the Associated Press poll this week, John Cabas' cagers dropped three opponents in the past six days by noteworthy average scores of 88 to 59.3.

Next Tuesday the locals will face what promises to be the supreme test of the season when they meet the Youngstown South Warriors on the South floor. The Warriors have a 10-1 record, having lost only to Youngstown Rayen which fell to Salem 86-58 Tuesday. If the Quakers cross the forthcoming hump, and if they continue to play the same calibre of ball they exhibited in previous contests, they should complete an undefeated season, and perhaps go on to earn plaudits in tourney

Combing Law On Appointments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (A)-Gov. C. William O'Neill and aides who served with him when he was attorney general are combing the law on appointments to avoid a special session of the Legislature. Atty. Gen. William Saxbe said he has urged the governor to call an extraordinary session to clear the air" of doubts over appointments to three posts requiring confirmation by the Ohio Senate. The posts are director of high. ways and director of mental health and corrections, both of cabinet status, and Ohio State University State Auditor James A. Rhodes asked Saxbe to rule on the appointment questions. Rhodes said he acted to avoid possible court action against him for illegal lav-ment of salaries and expenses. Saxbe indicated it may be some time before he issues his rulings despite reports that they are about ready. The governor declined comment until after he received the formal opinions. He said he had no present plans for a special session and expressed belief that things could be worked out".

Attorneys said staoute provides that, if the posts in question are vacant during a legislative session, the governor must make appointments and send them "forthwith" to the Senate for confirmation. During the last session, O'Neill made Charles M. Noble, former New Jersey turnpike engineer, his secretary in charge of highways at $30,000 a year. Noble was ineligible for appointment as highway director because he had not lived in Ohio a full year to qualify as an elector. His year was up last

During that time, George J. Thormyer served as acting highway director. A suit pending in Franklin County Common Pleas Court challenges the right of Thormyer to fire a highway department employe unless he actually is the director.

Rhodes asked Saxbe to say whether the governor, by failing appoint Noble to that post or to appoint Noble to that post or

Unrealistic Plea

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (A) - President Eisenhower's own Republicans made a shambles of his plea wistful, maybe, but not realisticto keep politics out of the defense

In view of what he knew his right-hand man Sherman Adams was saying at almost the same moment, it's hard to see how Eisenhower could have made the plea at all. Adams played politics with defense as hard as he could.

Only if they were living in a dream world could the politicians of the Democratic and Republican parties be expected to refrain from making political capital out of the defense issue at each other's

The :eason is simple: the nation's whole interest is centered on defense, not only in talking and wondering about how it can be made better but why it isn't better. There's ammunition for both political parties in this one.

Neither the Truman nor Eisenhower administrations made the all-out drive on missile development that the nation now realizes should have been made.

Eisenhower said in a speech at a Republican rally in Chicago Monday night: "Our first objective - security and a just peaceis not a partisan or political matter. Americans must never . . let the issue of security and neace become a pawn in anyone's political chess game."

But Eisenhower's press secretary James C. Hagerty disclosed that before his boss left for Chicago Monday he knew what Preidential Asst. Adams was going to say in Minneapolis Monday night about the time Eisenhower was talking. Hagerty said Adams also knew what Eisenhower was going to say.

What Adams said was plenty. He accused the Democrats not only of not spending enough money on missile development during the Truman administration but of lacking defense strength at the time of the Korean War. And more of the same.

That was not all. Adams in Minneapolis, like Eisenhower in Chicago, was addressing a Republican dinner. But other big-wheel Republicans were addressing other Republican dinners elsewhere around the country.

Secretary of Commerce Weeks in Tulsa, Okla., called the Democrats hypocrites for attacking as they have done - the Eisenhower administration's defense

Also involved is the question of whether the Legislature legally can appropriate money to pay > by the law that prescribes gubernatorial appointments. A similar question is involved in the recent appointment of Dr. Robert A. Haines, former head of Longview State Hospital in Cincinnati, as state mental health director. Dr. Earl C. Albrecrt served as acting director from 1956 until Haines took over. No appointing the legislative session, can now

ment was sent to the Senate. The third post is held by Forest G. Ketner of Columbus as OSU trustee. He was appointed by former Gov. Frank J. Lausche but a special session of the Legislature in 1956 failed to confirm him. He was reappointed by O'Neill but failed to receive confirmation during the regular session.

Attorneys said a ruling by the attorney general in 1923 requires appointment of another person under such circumstances.

Officials expressed belief that O'Neill wants to avoid a special session because of the flood of requests for enactment of special laws that usually accompanies such a call. Only the governor can call such a session and business must be restricted to matters he

A special session would cost the tate about $3,700 in mileage allowances for legislators. Officials speculated that the cost could be held to about $800 in allowances for senators only if House leaders agreed to a "skeleton" session requiring only the presence of officers in that chamber.

A special session might confront the administration with another difficulty. Officials raised the possibility of Senate failure to confirm Noble as highway director after defeat of a proposed crange in the state constitution at the last

Dubbed the "Noble Amendment," that change would have permitted the appointment of nonresidents to state posts and cleared the way for designatio n ohfte New Jersey import as Ohio highway director.

Economic Outlook

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Nobody Knows When Business Will Turn Upward

What's going on in the national economy at this particular mom ent is perhaps the biggest single preoccupation in the minds of busi someone could nvent a "Uni vac" to assemble t he facts about fluc business tuations c urrently not just retrospectiv e 1 y nonth or the David Lawrence last quarter or the last year - it would be easier to know what the actual trend is today.

For just at the moment the country is being told that a "recession" is under way. Actually, there were signs of a readjustment a year ago when national production began to slide. But nobody knew whether the slide was temporary. Also, there were conflicting factors at work. Thus, "hard goods" began to slip downward, but "soft goods" stayed up till the last quarter of 957.

Yet today, looking back to what was happening in January, February and March of 1957, it is evident that the first big blow the national economy began to feel was of a psycrological sort.

The fuss over the size of the budget caused hesitation in government spending. Defense contractors began to be worried.

There was even a delay in paying for work in process and soon many companies had to start borrowing money they otherwise would have received currently from the government.

Talk began to be heard, too, of a deadline - June 30, which is the end of the government's fiscal year - and of attempts to make a better showing on the budget. Government payments were delayed for a variety of good reasons.

THE TALK also was of changes in the amount of spending. The talk, furthermore, was of anti-inflation measures and tighter credit and this, of course, caused many a company to defer its expansion plans till it could borrow funds more cheaply. Billions of dollars' worth of private projects were laid

What did all these influences mean to the psychology of the final quarter of 1957?

How much were they responsible for the tendency to look upon the year 1957 as a whole as likely to be one of decline and perhaps serious readjustment? By the time the final quarter's operations were about to be envisaged during the summer months of 1957, the fear of readjustment had grown sizable and began to appear in a tangible form in the cutdown of spending by companies engaged in heavy goods, such as machinery and equipment. Unemployment began

What had seemed at first like a good profit year in 1957 turned out in the end to be adversely affected by the decline in the last quarter. It was not enough of a decline to make 1957 appear, relatively speaking, as a very bad year on profits but it gave its own warning of the effect of the profit squeeze - high costs and a diminishing volume of sales.

Today many of the labor leaders are reluctant to take too seriously the idea of a "recession." Others accept it and urge tax reduction and deflationary remedies.

THEY CONCEDE a readjustment is in progress but they do not feel it will be prolonged and are relying on the forecasts now being made about an "upturn in the second half of 1958."

Consequently they are thinking in terms of "wage increases as usual." This could block an upturn in business and shake public President Eisenhower, in his economic report to Congress, warns against increases in wages or prices - which is what he did a year ago - but the economic forces of the country do not seem to respond to exhortation. They respond only to grim facts.

All of the bad news about the impact of the recession has probably has not materialized as yet. Unemployment is around four million and there are many predictions that it will reach beyond five million and even to six million before the first quarter of 1958 is

The stock market, which is betting on a rise in business as assured sometime in 1958, is rather firm. It shows evidence of a belief that the worst is over.

BUT THE TRUTH IS nobody knows just when business will turn upward, because such a complex mechanism as a private - enterprise economy is not susceptible of contemporaneous analysis.

One has to wait till the weekly or monthly figures come in, and by that time a lot more has happened that can confirm or negate entirely the impressions already Steel is showing signs of steady production in the face of automobile cutbacks. Mortgage money is easing. This may increase construction of housing and business buildings.

There are many indications that businessmen are taking a longrange rather than a short-range view of things. They now have the words of confidence in the President's message to encourage them. If someone could really convince businessmen that the readjustment there could be a boom in the final quarter of 1958. But facts alone can give that assurance and the facts don't come fast enough to terminate readjustments just when the business world wishfully desires them to

Salem Will Seek 11th Win In Row Friday At Wellsville

Bengals Are 3-7 Over Season

Cabas Will Stick With Usual Starters

By GORDON ARNDT

For the first time in two weeks the Salem cagers will take to the road when they travel to Wellsville tomorrow night to battle the Bengals in quest of their 11th consecutive conquest of the campaign.

Wellsville has won its last pair of tilts, beating Bellaire St. John 50-46 and Newell, W. Va. 65-63. However, the Bengals possess a weak 3-7 slate on the season.

The two teams have played one common opponent. Salem beat East Palestine 62-61 while the Bulldogs beat Wellsville 49-44 in the Bengals' first game of the year. Wellsville has also fallen victim to Lisbon and East Liverpool by respective scores of 70-51 and 70-Their starting lineup is made up of 6-2 Dan Baldwin, 6-foot Andy Holowaty, 6-foot Bob Kiggans, 5-11 Jim Russell and 5-7 Jim Luckino. Baldwin is the Bengal's leading point man with 143 in 10 games for a 14.3 average. Their coach, John McDevitt, is in his first year there.

Quaker mentor John Cabas said he would stick with the same starting five which has carried the Quakers to their current success. The quintet consists of 6-5 Bill Pauline at center, 6-2 Lou Slaby and 6-5 John Sturgeon at forwards and the 5-9 guards, Moe Meissner and Butch Platt.

Last season, Salem beat Wellsville 69-51. In games played since 1932. Salem holds an overwhelming edge at 20-1. The last and only time Wellsville has beaten the Quakers in the past 25 years was in the 1945-46 season.

The Quaker-Bengal JV clash will commence at 7 p.m.

World's Best Answer to a Detour!

Pretty rough road, you'd say? Well, you certainly wouldn't be aware of it if you were sitting where these happy travelers are.

For they're in a 1958 Cadillac-and here, beyond a doubt, is the world's best substitute for a new highway!

Just what is this special Cadillac magic that works such wonders on a rough roadway? Well, let's take a look and see what happens to a bump when it meets the wheels of a new 1958 Cadillac.

First of all, it is softened by those big, buoyant, full-sized Cadillac tires

... then it is gently cushioned by those massive, perfectly balanced Cadillac coil springs

. . . or, if the extra-cost option of air suspension is present, it is subdued by that miraculous cushion of air that cradles the entire frame

... then it is diminished still further by Cadillac's

new hydraulic shock absorbers and by its specially engineered system of rubber body mountings. And, of course, should any suggestion of it still remain, it meets its final demise in those deep, luxurious, Fleetwood-crafted seat cushions . . . and in the car's marvelous steadiness and balance.

All in all, it's the reason why a journey in a new Cadillac is the finest distance between any two points.

We invite you to try it for yourself-and to get the full facts about all of the beautiful Cadillacs. including the distinguished Eldorado Brougham.

MOVIE MAKER-A "producer" since he was 7, Charles Russell, above, a high school sophomore in Canton, Ohio, has just completed his third film, "Rocket to Mars," which runs 20 minutes. Charles points to the miniature rocket he and his fellow workers used in their science fiction film. Papier-mache Mars and painted space complete the backdrop for the youthful "producer," who is now planning to enlarge his five-man staff to film a new movie entitled "Invaders From Outer Space." From script writing to completion, "Rocket to Mars" took more than six months for Charles and his friends. Charles shot the movie in color on 8mm film. Then he recorded background music and sound effects and synchronized them with the action in the film.

HOME DRESSED MEATS ALWAYS

Have you been checking the price per pound you have been paying for the meat you have been buying? Were you surprised at the price? There are many cuts but special prices are put on a few of the rough cuts. Because chuck or round steak is advertised it does not mean all chuck or round steak is sold at the special price. When we advertize, we sell all of that item until it is all gone and do not have some at a different name or a little different cut at a higher price. We do not advertize baits and are not ashamed of our regular prices. So we are advertising most of our meat prices for comparison.
